

Forty Years of Community Aloha for Ka Iwi Coast

- 1972: Community organizes to oppose a 7,756-room resort at Awāwamalu.
- 1983: City rezones Awāwamalu in response to 10 year community effort to stop the proposed resort.
- 1987: City's "Coastal View Study," notes that the Koko Head Viewshed from Hanauma Bay to Makapu'u "has long been recognized for its unique visual and environmental qualities," and is "the crescendo of a continuous visual sequence" from Hawai'i Kai or Waimānalo.
- 1988: After collecting 40,000 signatures in 10 weeks, the Save Sandy Beach Initiative is put on the ballot and residents vote overwhelmingly to rezone land mauka of Sandy Beach Park from residential to preservation to prevent a luxury residential subdivision. The Legislature unanimously passes a resolution asking DLNR to develop a park plan for Ka Iwi Coast.
- 1989: The Hawai'i Supreme Court strikes down the Save Sandy Beach ballot initiative and removes all counties of their land-use initiative voting rights. However, weeks later, the City Council voted unanimously to rezone the parcels mauka of Sandy Beach from residential to preservation.
- 1995: Proposed 12 parcel development along Ka Iwi Coast is dropped after community opposition. The State releases a draft EIS and Master Plan for the proposed Ka Iwi State Park.
- 1998: The State condemns 305 acres at Awāwamalu for incorporation into the proposed Ka Iwi State Park.
- 2002: City purchases the land near Sandy Beach Park once targeted for development.
- 2006: Community launches "No Cabins on Ka Iwi" campaign following plans for 180 "resort cabins" on the Ka Iwi Coast Mauka Lands.
- 2009: New developer purchases the 182-acre Ka Iwi Coast Mauka Lands for $9 million and announces plans to build a "golf academy" and visitor facilities.
- 2010: Urged by community, the State re-designates the coastal Awāwamalu lands from "urban" to "conservation."
- 2011: Ka Iwi Coalition, now a committee under the nonprofit Livable Hawai'i Kai Hui, initiates discussion of a purchase of the Ka Iwi Coast Mauka Lands. Ka Iwi Coalition contacts the Trust for Public Land for help.
- 2014: The Trust for Public Land & Livable Hawai'i Kai Hui receive $3.5M for the purchase from the City Clean Water and Natural Lands Program, and the State Legacy Land Conservation Program.
- 2015: You help to save the Ka Iwi Coast Mauka Lands, completing this 40 year movement to protect the entire Ka Iwi Coast.
